

Frank Mahaffay Killed Tinley Man Hurt In Automobile Crash

Frank Mahaffay, aged 53 years, a life long resident of Palos Park and widely known in Masonic circles, was instantly killed Tuesday morning when the Borden milk truck he was driving and a car driven by Paul Nasewendt of Tinley Park, collided at 127th street and Harlem avenue. The accident occurred at 5:40 o'clock while Mr. Mahaffay was making milk delivery to the CCC camp at Palos Park. The force of the impact apparently knocked Mr. Mahaffay out of the truck which in tipping over, fell on him, crushing him and causing his instant death. Mr. Nasewendt received minor cuts and bruises. Both machines were badly smashed.

Mr. Mahaffay was born in Palos and resided here all his life. He was prominently identified with the Masonic order and was the Past Master of the Masonic Lodge and Past Patron of the Order of the Eastern Star, both of Blue Island.

Surviving him are his widow, Clara, three sons, Lester, Clarence, Albert; four daughters, Ethelyn, Evelyn, Clarise and Alice; four sisters, Mrs. Jennie Clark, Allegan, Michigan; Mrs. Ella Loebe, Orland Park; Mrs. Mable Lane, Western Springs; Mrs. Maud Traub, Palos Park; two brothers, Wm. J. Mahaffay, Palos Park and Walter Mahaffay of Worth.

His father, Winslow Mahaffay of Allegan, Michigan also survives. Masonic funeral rites were held on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock in the Masonic Temple in Blue Island. Burial was made in the Oak Hill cemetery in Palos.

The funeral services were largely attended. Masons from Orland Park, Palos Park, Tinley Park, Blue Island and other towns attended the final rites.

Mr. Mahaffay was a member of the Palos Park Presbyterian church.

Mr. Mahaffay has been driving a milk truck for the Borden Milk Co. for sometime.

Mr. Nasewendt is a resident in the north Elmore subdivision in Tinley Park and is employed in Chicago and has been driving to and from his work each day.

It is thought a veil of fog at the intersection where the crash occurred prevented both drivers from seeing each other in time to stop.

Bell Tel. Co., Show Movie at Orland PTA Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Orland Park P. T. A. was held in the Orland Park School house October 4.

Through the courtesy of the Illinois Bell Telephone a fine talking picture was presented. The pictures were very educational and held the interest of both the parents and the children. We were shown how underground cables are constructed and we followed the cable from a single copper strand till it became a completed lead covered cable. We were shown how the telephone company brings in phone service from an ocean going line to the continent; also the part the telephone company plays in bringing radio programs over the network system.

After the pictures the regular business meeting was conducted with the president, Mrs. Lillian Knox presiding. Mrs. H. Adelle Cooper read a paper which contained questions and answers most often asked about Parent, Teacher Associations.

The ways and means committee consisting of Mrs. Ray Doctor, Chairman, Mrs. Thomas Wheeler and Mrs. John Burkhardt, report a very successful candy sale which was held before the meeting. Six dollars and ninety-nine cents was turned into the treasurer as the proceeds of the sale.

Miss Mary Van Camp's room won the monthly prize of one dollar that is awarded to the room who has the most parents present who are members of the association.

ORLAND LEGION POST INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

The Orland Park Post of the American Legion acted as hosts to their ladies and to the officers of the Fourth District at a dinner and a dancing party held Tuesday evening at the Oak Hills Country Club in Palos. A chicken dinner was served following which the newly elected officers were installed by Otto Raimond, Commander of the Fourth District of the American Legion.

Commander Raimond before performing the installation ceremony, complimented the Orland Park Post for the good work they have done in the past week and said that their efforts would not go by unnoticed and that their efforts in furthering the growth of community and membership work is much appreciated by the officers of the Fourth District and was deserving of public recognition.

Commander Raimond was assisted by Vice-Commander Frank Prindiville of the Fourth District as Sergeant-at-arms. The officers installed are:

Commander, William Little
Senior Vice-Com. Chas. Maddox
Jr. Vice-Com. Harold Ferrin,
Finance Officer, Henry Munch
Adjutant, Walter Schussler, Jr.
Chaplain, Sherman S. Knox
Historian, Paul Sanders
Serg.-at-arms, Thomas Cooper
Executive Committee, Ray Doctor,
Van Buren Knox, Ernest Woods,
Herman Nicolai.

Ray Doctor, the outgoing commander of the Orland Post was presented with a Past Commander's pin by the installing officer.

When Commander Little took office he made an address in which he said that the Post was not a one man affair and that in order to be successful he would have to have the full support of all the Post members. He also urged the ladies whose husbands are members of the Post to assist by urging their husbands to attend the monthly meetings.

A special tribute was paid to the memory of the fallen comrades by a brief pause of silence.

At the close of the installation ceremony, dancing was the feature of the evening, the music being furnished by Frank King and his orchestra from Palos Park.

The Orland Park Post has many activities planned and will be heard from often.

Orland Woman's Club Has Interesting Educational Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Orland Park Women's Club was held October 4, in the James Creer Hall. The program started at 11:00 o'clock with Educational Views and a talk on the part pictures play in educating our children, by Eleanor Witz of Oak Lawn. The slides shown were beautifully colored in natural colors.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Geo. Cox, Mrs. Laurence Uthe, Mrs. Alice Newton, Miss Helen Campbell and a social hour till 1:30 was enjoyed by the members present.

The afternoon meeting was opened by pledging allegiance to the flag and the assembly singing the National Anthem.

Mrs. Geo. Cox, Welfare chairman and her committee had charge of the program and had as their guest of honor Mrs. Arthur Kosehagen, 3rd District chairman.

Mrs. Fred Nicols of Blue Island spoke on the war veterans in Oak Forest, she told why these men are at Oak Forest and made an appeal for playing cards, magazines, sugar jellies and cigarettes. She also asked if we had any program or play that we present them for the veterans, and she extended an invitation to the club to visit Oak Forest.

Miss VanLew a Red Cross Nurse talked on the course that the Red Cross sponsors, "Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick" and asked if we could secure enough members to start another class.

At this time our regular business meeting was conducted, the president Mrs. Ella Loebe presiding.

Mrs. Arthur Kosehagen then spoke a few words of greeting to the club and told of the work the Women's Club has done in securing permission from the County Board to teach "Occupational Therapy" at Oak Forest Infirmary.

Miss M. Bartlett who is a representative of the Juvenile Court, then spoke on the work of this court. She told us that there are two kinds of children that the court is called on to take care of, the delinquent, and the dependent. She explained how these children are handled and how homes are either restored, or the children placed in private homes and institutions. She explained why some children are placed in private homes and not in institutions. She told us that we now have 3,000 children in institutions and 2,000 in private homes, that Cook County is taking care of. After listening to Miss Bartlett we felt that we had learned a good deal about our Juvenile Court. After Miss Bartlett answered questions asked by members we were adjourned.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER DISCOVERS SOMETHING STARTLING

NOT far from the Old Orchard grew a thorn-tree which Peter often passed. He never had paid particular attention to it. One morning he stopped to rest under it. Happening to look up, he saw a most astonishing and startling sight. Fastened on the sharp thorns of one of the branches were three big grasshoppers, a big moth, two big caterpillars, a lizard, a small mouse, and a young English sparrow.

Do you wonder that Peter thought he must be dreaming? He couldn't

"You're wrong, Johnny Chuck. You are altogether wrong."

Imagine how those creatures could have become fastened on those long, sharp thorns. It was a dreadful sight. Somehow it gave him an uncomfortable feeling. He didn't want to stay around there, yet it was hard to tear himself away. However, finally he did and hurried over to the Old Orchard, bubbling over with desire to tell someone of the strange and dreadful thing he had seen in the thorn-tree and to try to find out what it meant.

Sitting on his doorstep under the big apple tree in the far corner of the Old Orchard he found Johnny Chuck and at once hurried to tell him the strange news. Johnny didn't interrupt once. When Peter had finished his story, Johnny quite frankly told him that never had he heard of such a thing, and that he thought Peter must have been dreaming and didn't know it.

Now, Peter knew that he hadn't been dreaming. He knew that he had seen with his very own eyes that dreadful sight in the thorn-tree and he grew quite indignant with Johnny Chuck for doubting him. But Johnny persisted in refusing to believe and repeated that he was certain Peter must have dreamed it.

Do YOU Know—

That the first wearer of a top hat was John Hetherington, who strutted the streets of London in 1797, and created such excitement that he was arrested for disturbing the peace. The summons accused him "of wearing in a public thoroughfare a tall structure of shiny lustre, calculated to frighten timid folks."

"You're wrong, Johnny Chuck. You are altogether wrong. Peter hasn't been dreaming at all," said Skimmer the Swallow, who lives in a hole in the tree just above Johnny Chuck's house and had been sitting where he overheard everything.

"Well, if you know so much about it, please explain," said Johnny Chuck rather crossly.

"It's simple enough," replied Skimmer. "Peter just happened to find the storehouse of Butcher the Shrike. It isn't a very pleasant sight, I must admit, but one must give Butcher credit for being smart enough to lay up a store of food when it was plentiful. When you come to think about it, I don't know why one who eats that kind of food shouldn't store it up the same as some others store up other kinds of foods. Of course, those things won't keep long, but they will keep from one meal to another, and probably that is all Butcher wants."

"Who is Butcher the Shrike," demanded Peter. "He's new to me."

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN...
The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A friend of mine told me he knew a married woman 53 years of age who sleeps in the same room with cats. Do you believe this?

Truly yours,
X. ACKTING.

Answer: Sure, I believe it. Your friend probably is referring to Mrs. Katz.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I live in a town and to go to work I must take a ferry over the river. Why doesn't the city government build a bridge?

Yours truly,
MRS. SIPPE.

Answer: They're afraid it will make the people cross.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am eight years old and am in the fourth grade in school. I have to write a story about a "Southern Planter." What does the teacher mean by a "Southern Planter?"

Yours truly,
I. PUPIL.

Answer: A "Southern Planter," my child, is an undertaker who operates only in the South.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

There is so much talk about "Society" changing in the last twenty-five years. If this is true, can you describe the change?

Yours truly,
I. M. A. CLIMBER.

Answer: Twenty-five years ago you married into "Society." Today you divorce into it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

On my recent trip through the West the train stopped at a little town in Arizona. The conductor of our train pointed to a rough looking man on the platform and told me that the man he was pointing at had killed twenty men. Do you think cowboys are really as bad as that?

Truly yours,
O. PINSPACES.

Answer: No, I don't. In fact the fellow you saw in Arizona was not a cowboy but a taxi driver from the East who was in Arizona on his vacation.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I gave my son, who is twelve years of age, a job to break a big rock which was in our back yard. He hammered away at it for four hours without any result. I took the hammer and broke the rock with the first blow.

Dress for Morning

This dress of soft green wool striped in a lighter shade and trimmed with matching silk duvetyne revers, belt and scarf, is an excellent choice for mornings in town.

What is the present generation coming to?

Sincerely,
AMASSA STONE.

Answer: It was easy for you to break it after your son made it soft for you. ©, the Associated Newspapers. WNU Service.

YOU AWAY?

By ANNE CAMPBELL

YOU'VE gone away? Ah, no, you are still here
In every room that treasures your sweet grace.
I linger in your chair and feel you near.
Your mirror seems to miss your absent face.
The curtains meet the breeze, their creamy lace
Waving like phantom arms to bid you come.
Your loved books wait in their accustomed place.
Outside there is the town's familiar hum.

You've gone away? Ah, no, you could not go
Beyond my heart's pavilion. You are there
With the bright lamp of friendliness aglow,
Sending its beams to light me up life's stair.
You will be with me whether joy or care
Is my companion in the days to be.
Absent or present, you are everywhere!
You are away, perhaps, but not from me!

Mother's Cook Book

THE VERSATILE BANANA

AS the banana is a fruit always on the market, it is a constant source of comfort in time of emergency when a hurry-up dish is necessary.

Banana Whip.

Cook three mashed bananas in a double boiler with one-third of a cup of sugar and one tablespoonful of lemon juice until scalded. Add a few drops of vanilla, a pinch of salt, and cool. Whip one cupful of heavy cream until firm, then add the banana mixture gradually. Set aside to chill. Serve piled high in sherbet glasses with chopped pistachio nuts for garnish.

Banana Tapioca Cream.

Peel and scrape three bananas and cut into slices. Prepare a custard by scalding two cupfuls of milk with three tablespoonfuls of tapioca and cook until the tapioca is clear. Add two egg yolks mixed with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-third of a teaspoonful of salt. Cook for two minutes, cool and add a few drops of vanilla. Beat the egg whites until stiff, adding three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Pour one-third of the custard into the serving dish, cover with bananas, add more custard and more bananas. Pour the remaining custard over the remaining egg whites and top the dish. Garnish with banana slices.

Boston Banana Cream Pie.

Break a large egg into a measuring cup, add softened butter (two tablespoonfuls), all the cup with milk. Turn into a mixing bowl, and beat with one and one-half cups of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in two layer pans. Whip a cupful of cream, sweeten to taste, flavor with almond, and spread over the layers, cover with sliced bananas. Top the upper layer with cream sprinkled with chopped nuts.

Banana Pancakes.

Mix and sift three-fourths of a cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Beat one egg, add one cupful of banana pulp, one-half cupful of milk and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Beat until smooth. Cook on a hot griddle. Serve with currant jelly.

HOW TO SHOOT

By Bob Nichols

Shooting Editor, Field and Stream

MANY upland shooters delay their shooting proficiency by months, and even years, by neglecting to learn how to mount their guns. They watch good shots perform and get the idea into their heads that the gun is thrown or jerked to the shoulder in a convulsive, spasmodic movement. Which only goes to prove again that the hand is sometimes quicker than the eye.

The good shot has gone through that movement so many thousands of times, both in "dry" shooting practice as well as in actual firing practice, that he seems to make the movement in a flash. Actually he does accomplish it in what seems to be a flash, but instead of being a jerky, convulsive move it is a deliberate and well-timed motion.

Recently on one of the well-known skeet fields in the eastern part of the country, I observed a beginner stop shooting because of a sizable lump he had raised on the under side of his right jaw. I asked him what seemed to be the matter, never doubting for a moment that he no more knew what was the matter than Adam knew how to avoid apple-eating women.

He told me his gun was kicking him. Ridiculously wrong reason, because he was shooting a 20 gauge automatic, and the slight kick of this little gun is as gentle as a lamb. I knew what his trouble was. But I was interested to know whether he could come anywhere near analyzing his own mistake. I pointed out to him that his bruise was under his jaw bone where no self respecting gun should ever raise a bump. Then I told him what he had been doing. He was simply, and stupidly, throwing his gun stock up against his shoulder and jaw with such uncontrolled and convulsive force that he was literally rattling his own teeth.

Such a trick may sound funny. But it wasn't funny. It was just a rather pathetic illustration of how easily the beginner goes wrong in trying to imitate what he thinks are the motions the good shot makes.

Good gun mounting, as the crack shot does it, is a gradual blending and co-ordination of two major adjustments. Seen in slow motion it would be something like this: As the target flashes into view, the gun begins to rise to the shoulder and to the cheek. The head remains erect. The eyes now have the target clearly in focus. The gun keeps rising carefully, deliberately. And all the while it is rising it is pointing—instinctively—closer and closer to the target's line of flight. During this interval the eyes are conscious only of the target. They are not yet conscious of the gun. The trained hands are instinctively taking care of the gun. Gradually the gun stock settles firmly, but gently, against the shoulder—never shoved back against the shoulder with force that not only disturbs the shoulder support, but also causes the gun muzzle to wobble! Now the eyes begin to take command of gun as well as target. As the butt-stock settles into the shoulder (never out on the arm!) the head inclines forward slightly to cheek the rising comb. Now in the last split second comes the finer adjustment, eyes and hands working together—and in a flash the trained trigger finger has let off the shot. That's real wingshooting!

During the last fine adjustment of sighting, I estimate that the eyesight is concentrated about 80 per cent on the gun, 60 per cent on the target, and 10 per cent on the immediate area around and in front of the target. Shoot with both eyes open, of course, always. The best upland shots I have ever seen all shoot with both eyes wide open. You need the full power of both eyes to see your game distinctly and to judge angles, distances, and flight speeds accurately. Nature gave you two eyes for this very reason.

But learn first to mount your gun gently, then "pointing-ly"—then "aiming-ly." Don't jump your gun up spasmodically and then try to find your target with your eyes glued at the barrel breech. Take it easy. You may be slow at first. But begin doing it right, and speed will come with practice.

Conservation Commission

Denied Regulatory Power

A court decision of far-reaching effect was recently handed down by Judge Frank A. Bell, in the Marquette County Circuit court. He said that the state conservation commission had no authority to regulate the manner in which any unprotected animal could be taken and that the commission had no right to establish closed seasons on them. This means that mink, coyote, wolf, fox, skunk, porcupine, house cats, red squirrels, weasels, owls, hawks, crows, starlings and blackbirds can be taken at any time of the year, in any manner so long as it does not conflict with general game laws, but that any order issued by the commission in conflict with the general game laws is out, and need not be obeyed.—Detroit News.

Brazil's Women Get Suffrage

One of the outstanding features of the new Brazilian Constitution is the establishment of universal suffrage allowing women full political rights for the first time in South America, including election to any office—even the presidency.

SYNOPSIS

Prudence Schuyler comes from New York to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, whose health has been broken by tragedy.

CHAPTER I—Continued

The legacy had providentially answered the on to the country problem. Now that the strain was eased, she had but a confused remembrance of the days during which she had cleared and sub-leased the apartment. At the last moment, Jane Mack had begged to go with her. Her eyes were giving out for sewing, she had said, but she knew almost everything there was to know about a house—she had been trained by a New England mother. Prudence had hugged her in her relief. Jane Mack might be grim and a confirmed pessimist but she could cook, while she herself farmed and, if opportunity and time allowed, worked at her craft.

Could she afford to keep Si Puffer as helper on the place? her thoughts ran on. She couldn't afford not to at present. Already he had stood like a guardian angel between her and the voice in the fog; how he had growled the name, "Len Calloway!" What had the man wanted? Something in his demand had antagonized her. "Tomorrow" was almost here. Soon she would know.

The muslin hangings swung into the room like two frail, transparent wings. Had the wind changed?

She ran to the window. The fog had cleared as if by magic. With a surge of indefinable longing, the girl looked up at the star-punctured heavens. With a shaky laugh at her own absurdity, she flung out her hands toward the man in the moon.

"Your excellency, I thank you for this royal welcome! Prue of Prosperity farm salutes you!"

CHAPTER II

Prudence stopped settling her possessions the next day at noon long enough to inspect the outside of her inheritance. Her tour of inspection ended at the long weather-stained barn.

With a frenzied "cut-cut-cut-cadaa-kut!" a black hen flew down from the topmost loft. Prudence watched her switch and cackle and flap through the open doorway, before her eyes returned to the spot from which she had descended. Had she been stealing a nest? Could she find it? What fun!

She tugged a light ladder into place, and with excited agility mounted. Past the first mow. Up to the highest, almost touching the roof. That black hen hadn't been sitting up here to see the soldiers go by, she must have left a nest. She touched warm feathers. A sharp peck from a yellow beak dampened her lashes but steeled her determination. She shut her eyes tight and grabbed. She flung the squawking fowl to an adjacent mound of hay where it made the rafters ring with its outraged cackle.

Prudence sat back on her heels and counted. Eight eggs!

"Si! Oh, Si!"

The cheery call came from below. A man's voice. Not the Voice in the Fog. That had appeared in person early this morning. Who could it be? Prudence cautiously placed the eggs in her white skirt, gathered up the front of it, and leaned too far over. The hay slid. Struggling to retard her progress, she went with it, down, down into the arms of a man.

"Boy! That was a narrow squeak!"

Prudence had closed her lids tight when she felt herself going. She opened them wide, looked up into the deepest bluest eyes she ever had seen. Her glance traveled on to light hair which had an engaging kink at the temple, then back to the face. Its expression sent a ripple along her nerves. Who was he? The muscles of his jaws were set, his arms still gripped her.

"Seems idiotic to say just 'Thank you' when you really—" Her smile was tremulous, her voice shaken. She shivered.

"Don't think about it. I was the man for the moment, all right. What possessed you to lean over that hay-mow?"

Prudence freed herself and stepped back. She resented the dictatorial question.

"Don't lose your temper. That's my usual one-two-three-go! method of descending from haymows. Rather original—if you get what I mean." Now that his color had returned, the curve of his sensitive mouth set her on the defensive. It was so darn boyish for a man his age; he must be about thirty.

"Okay with me. Every move a picture. But is this method of transporting eggs also original with you?" He glanced at her white skirt which she still gripped with one hand. From the side a stream of egg yolks was dripping.

"My word!" She looked from her skirt to his perfectly tailored gray sports suit. It was liberally splattered with yellow which had not been part of the weaver's design. The sight wiped her eyes and voice clean of assumed indifference.

"I'm sorry! I'm terribly sorry. I—I've made you look like an omelette."

His eyes deepened as they met hers contritely appealing. His lips tightened. Was he furiously angry because she had spoiled his clothes? "Truly, I'm sorry. I haven't even thanked you for saving me from a horrid fall—I'd loathe being pushed—forgive me for being flippant. I am on my knees in apology for the damage to your clothes. Come into the house and Jane Mack will take off the spots. She's a demon cleanser."

"No, thank you, my man will do it." "If you scorn our help, you will let me say 'Thank you,' won't you?" She held out her hand. "I am Prudence Schuyler of Prosperity farm."

"Don't apologize for the damage, which amounts to nothing, or the snub which I deserved. I am—"

"Well, Rod, here you are!" Si Puffer in work-stained blue overalls extended a knob-jointed hand. "What you doin' here? Thought you left High Ledges last week. Whatta mean is, didn't know you and Miss Prue was acquainted."

So this was the glamorous Rodney Gerard! The playboy whom she had planned to treat with superb disdain when or if they met! Life certainly had a nice sense of humor to fling her into his arms. Prudence debonairly answered the question in Si Puffer's slate-color eyes.

"We aren't—that is, we weren't, but quite suddenly I took the quickest way down from the haymow, Mr. Man-of-the-Moment caught me—and look!" She held out her skirt.

"Well, I'll be darned—and eggs forty cents a dozen! You'd better chuck the mess an' go get that skirt cleaned."

"I'm going. Good morning, Mr.—Mr. Rod, and thank you again." Prudence smiled and nodded to the two men watching her, as she left the barn.

"Pretty as a movie star and smart as a steel trap," Si Puffer commented.

"Who is she? What is she doing here?"

"Haven't you heard? Austin Schuyler left all his holdings here to that slip of a girl. He up an' died, just after he'd paid a lot of money for an annuity, too. Can you beat it! Miss Prue came last night with a hatchet-faced woman who's going to be the housekeeper. She's come to the farm to see if she can get her brother David's health back. They say he had an income enough to live on—he was a lawyer—besides his practice till the crash came. Two years ago his wife walked out on him with his sister Julie's husband."

"Schuyler! Is that the family! That rotten scandal staggered even the most hard-boiled people I know. This Miss Schuyler's sister Julie was charming but too domestic for the man she married. Her husband wanted a woman who would make other men stop, look, listen. His wife's sister-in-law was that type, so he stepped up and took her. He didn't have her long. Mrs. David Schuyler was smashed up in an automobile accident a week after she ran away."

"Gorry-me. Makes me think of them words in the Bible, 'an' the wages of sin is death.' Folks say David Schuyler put in all his spare time helping the down-an'-out at a rescue mission. Mis Prue's got grit. Whatta mean is, last night when I brought them in, the road was so thick with fog you could cut it. Once when I looked round I could see tears glistening in her eyes, but she kept her voice like music. I'll bet she sings."

"So she intends to farm! Haven't they any money?"

"Lost it; investments wiped out as quick and as clean as you can wipe writing from a slate. Whatta mean is, they lost their money, that's the talk in the village. She can get her living all right from the place if—if—only she will stick it out. In spite of radios an' movies, I guess 'twon't seem much like the city. Thought you'd gone, Rod. Don't you usually go flying or playing polo or visiting this time of year?"

Rodney Gerard looked quickly at Puffer's inscrutable face. "You're not crazy about me as a solid citizen, are you, Si? I was going, but Len Calloway held me up. He wants my decision on the timber now so that he can make his contracts for the increase in his cut."

Puffer rubbed his hand up and down his unshaven cheek. He drawled:

"I'll donate one piece of advice, Rod. Don't trust Calloway. Whatta mean is, that old trouble between you two is only smolderin'. Len's always been a queer mixture of terrible temper and a sense of justice. When he gets mad he sees blood-red."

"He's all right now, Si. He has been mighty fair and agreeable."

"Hmp. That's because he wants something. Butter wouldn't melt in his mouth when he aims to please. Just the same, don't let him have that timber."

Rodney Gerard paused in the act of applying a lighter to a cigarette. "What's the idea? You told me yourself that a lot of big stuff ought to come out for the good of the forest."

"I did. There's thousands of feet of standing timber that's no longer growing, more than half of it decaying an' likely to be destroyed by the first storm. I told you something else too—that you ought to have a forester here to mark every tree that was to come out, not leave it to the judgment of any man who can swing an ax, and that you ought to be here yourself when the cutting was done to see it was done right."

"I haven't forgotten, but, Si, they cut trees when the snow is on the ground. What would I do here in winter?"

"Folks have lived here through a winter, Rod, and slept and et like human beings. I calculate 'twouldn't hurt you none."

With a boyish shout of laughter, Rodney Gerard flung his arm about Puffer's shoulders.

"Don't you go back on me. I bank on you to stand by me as you have ever since you taught me to hold a gun. As to Len Calloway, I'll say 'nothing doing' to him now, and when I get around to it I'll have a forester give us a report on the trees."

"All right, Roddy. When you get the forester here, have him look over that wood lot of Miss Prue's. There's about five hundred acres along the rise that Austin Schuyler bought of Len Calloway's father. That stretch called The Hundreds between the highway an' the sky line. You an' I have been shooting over it year after year. It's the best stand of spruce and pine in the county. Ought to bring that spunky little girl a nice bunch of cash; but I'm afraid if Len Calloway gets hold of Miss Prue before she knows its value, he'll make a sharp trade with her. He's the kind of chap girls and women fall for—only the Lord knows why and he ain't telling—kinder mesmerizes them, I guess. He held me up in the fog last evening to ask when she was comin'. I didn't let on I had her in the back seat that very minute. Didn't want him to get in a lick till I'd warned her to watch her step. But he beat me to it. He's been to see her this morning."

"This morning!" "Gorry-me. Rod, what's there in that to get so excited about? Every unmarried man in the county—I wouldn't put it past some of the married ones—will come buzzin' round the red brick house like bees around a honey pot, now that girl is there."

Rodney Gerard thoughtfully regarded a fish hawk sailing high above him. He was looking at a different world from the world he had known as he entered the old barn. The sky seemed bluer, the air more sparkling; his blood raced through his veins. He had the sense of a new beginning, as if again, as in his ardent boyhood, he set his compass by a shining star. Of course he had given to charities—money, not his time. Spending for a round of amusement seemed flat, when you saw a girl taking life in both hands and forcing a living from it. He colored and his glance came back to the quizzical eyes watching him.

"Look here, Si, don't let Miss Schuyler sign up with Calloway. She will listen to you. I'll have a forester here within a month if I have to buy one. I was going to New York tonight—but I'll cut out the social stuff this autumn, stay here and attend to the timber."

Puffer strode after him as he left the barn. "Do you mean to say, Roddy, that you'll winter along with us and get out the logs? Mebbe I kin see you doing it?"

The not too thinly veiled taunt sent the blood in a red tide to Gerard's fair hair. He sprang into the low, long roadster, which had not a touch of color to relieve its shining blackness. He slammed the door and jumped the car forward.

"Mebbe, Mr. Puffer, you don't know as much about me as you think you do!" he flung over his shoulder.

Si Puffer's faded eyes were warm with affection as he watched the roadster skid round the curve.

"Got him mad, gorry-me, got him mad. Guess I went to work the right way to wake that young feller up." He chuckled, prodded thoughtfully with the straw, before he reflected aloud:

"I wonder, though, how much I really had to do with his staying."

Dusk and Mrs. Puffer appeared simultaneously at the red brick house. Prudence was placing a fresh blotter on her brother's desk in the living room when the massive woman waddled in and set a crisp golden brown loaf on the table.

"That's for luck. My grandmother, who was Welsh, always carried along a loaf when she went visiting. She claimed it brought good fortune."

"It smells marvelous! Raisins—hundreds of them! I'm going to eat that crusty end this minute."

"Glad you like it; knew you wouldn't have time to cook today, so left some things in the kitchen for your supper. I wanted to come up and help, but Si said you had everything planned so fine that the moving went as if 'twas on greased wheels. He thinks you're a wonder. Don't know but what I'll get jealous." Her small brown eyes, flecked with green, disappeared in rolls of flesh when she laughed.

Prudence dropped to a floor cushion beside the chair. She swallowed an especially plummy mouthful.

"Jealous! A woman who can make bread like this! You don't have to worry about keeping your men folk off the street. I'll wager they are on time for every meal."

Mrs. Puffer's eyes filled, her lips quivered. "Si is all the men in the family now—we had one boy." She touched a tiny gold star pinned on the breast of her gown. "This stands for a white cross in France."

Prudence laid her hand on the plump fingers. "Dear Mrs. Puffer, I can understand your heartache. I wasn't very old when David went across, but I remember Mother's eyes when the doorbell or the phone rang. They seemed to knife through my heart even when she smiled and talked in her beautiful voice. She had such gay courage."

"Gay courage! That's the sort. Most folks talk of grim courage. I guess that idea came from our Puritan ancestors. But your brother came back safe, dearie. They told me in the village that he wears ten bars on his Victory medal."

"Yes, for carrying ammunition to the Front of the Front in ten campaigns."

"They tell me, too, that isn't all you have to be proud of him for." She resolutely cleared her voice. "We're getting kind of solemn in the freight. You look real handsome in that dress. It's just the color of the shine in your hair, 'tain't red an' 'tain't yellow, it's like some of my prize zinnias—and those wax beads around your neck are awful pretty."

Wax beads! Julie's pearls! What would Mrs. Puffer say if she knew their value?

"What sort of man is Mr. Calloway, Mrs. Puffer? Something of an exhibitionist, isn't he?"

The stout woman's placidity was slightly shaken. "Dearie, you gave me a start. Si told me I must warn you about Len, and I was thinking how I'd best begin when you up and ask the question. Don't trust him."

Prudence chuckled. Mrs. Puffer's portentous voice was so out of character with her personality.

"Has he always lived here?" "He was born in this house."

"Here!"

"Lors, Miss Prue, before you've lived here a month you'll think every person in the United States had a relative who was born in this house, or one who died here. Folks is everlastingly stopping to ask if they may look around because someone who belonged to them once lived here."

"Sort of a combination of maternity hospital and detention house for heaven, wasn't it? It is almost dark. Let's have a light." She applied a match to the wick in the lamp on the table. "It's out! I'm clumsy. Wonder why Uncle Austin didn't have electricity put in. There! It's lighted!" She adjusted the green shade.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Oregon's Forests

Names of historic national forest landmarks in Oregon reveal records of human history and migration. Typically historic names are Mount David Douglas, in the Willamette national forest, named in honor of the famous Scottish botanist who, in 1826, first classified the Douglas fir tree for science. Tomahawk Island in Multnomah county marks the vicinity where Captain Clark's pipe tomahawk was stolen by Indians in 1895. Snoqualmie national forest is from the Indian tribal name, "Sdoh-kwakh-bluh," or moon people.

Men Had to Sew

It was considered improper among the ancient Abyssinians for women to wash or sew any article of clothing, these duties being more suitable to men.

Lesson for October 14

THE CHRISTIAN AND HIS BIBLE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:26-39.
GOLDEN TEXT—O how love I thy law! It is my meditation all the day. Psalm 119:97.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning From God's Book.

JUNIOR TOPIC—An Ethiopian Finds Good News in the Bible.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding Time for Bible Study.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Study the Bible.

In the conversion of the Ethiopian we not only see the Word of God in relation to the salvation of a sinner, but the Lord's work broadening in its scope.

I. Philip Meeting the Ethiopian (vv. 26-29).

1. Leaving the Lord's work by Divine direction (v. 26). The Lord called Philip away from a great work in Samaria, and specifically directed him to this man. Abrahamlike, he obeyed the divine command, not knowing why he should leave the work in Samaria and go into a desert place. As he journeyed on by faith, he espied the state chariot of the Ethiopian treasurer. The Spirit of God directed him to go near and join himself to the chariot. The tactful question put to the treasurer gained him a seat by the side of this dignified officer. The commission which at first seemed so unpromising was now clear. The way of faith begins in obscurity, but it always ends in the clear light.

2. An officer of state reading the Bible (vv. 27, 28). The Ethiopian had been to Jerusalem to worship. Despite his high official position, he was not ashamed to be a worshiper of God. Following after God should not be considered beneath the dignity of a statesman. Indeed, the world's greatest statesmen have been God-fearing men.

3. A providential meeting in the desert (v. 29). The coming together of these two men was clearly the predetermined way of God. God knew the road which the eunuch would be traveling, and the time of his passing through Gaza.

II. Philip Preaching to the Ethiopian (vv. 30-35).

1. The Ethiopian's employment while journeying (v. 30). His occupation at the time of this meeting was reading the Word of God. At the invitation of the Ethiopian, Philip joined himself to the chariot and found him reading from the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah. God will eventually show the way of life to the one who searches his Word.

2. The absolute need of an interpreter (v. 31). The Ethiopian was reading one of the clearest testimonies to the Messiah in the Old Testament, yet he was unable to understand it. The Ethiopian, a great statesman, needed an interpreter of the Scriptures. The mind of the natural man is blind to spiritual things, making the work of an evangelist indispensable. Preaching the Word of God will always be necessary. Valuable as is the Bible in the hands of men, the touch and influence of the living man who has experienced the work of God's saving grace in his own heart is needed.

3. Philip's message (vv. 32-35). He began at the Scripture which the Ethiopian was reading, and preached unto him Jesus. (This shows us that the person represented in the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah as suffering in the stead of others was Jesus Christ instead of Israel. It shows also that the central theme of the preacher's message should be Jesus. He did not preach Jesus as a great teacher, but as a Saviour who had suffered and died instead of the sinner. He preached Jesus as the one who had offered himself as a ransom for many. If there is to be a revival, there must be a return to the preaching of salvation through the shed blood of Jesus Christ.)

III. Philip Baptizing the Ethiopian (vv. 36-38).

As a result of Philip's preaching, the eunuch proposed baptism. When Christ is truly preached, men naturally desire to confess him in baptism. Water baptism is clearly included in the program of evangelization. The Ethiopian might have offered many excuses as to why he should neglect this important ordinance, but, like every man who is honest before God, he was willing at any cost to render obedience. It is faith in the finished work of Jesus Christ that saves, but those who have a genuine faith desire to seal it in baptism.

IV. The Ethiopian Rejoicing (v. 39). Having understood the way of salvation, embraced the Saviour, and rendered obedience to the Word of God, he went on his way rejoicing. Confession of Christ always issues in joy.

Rights of Others

Everywhere the Gospel bids the Christian to take sides against himself. He is to stand ready to forego his surest rights, if only he is hurt by so doing; while on the other hand, he is to be watchful to respect even the least obvious rights of others.—Dr. H. C. G. Moule.

Hurry and Despatch

No two things differ more than hurry and despatch. Hurry is the mark of a weak mind; despatch of a strong one.—Colton.

VALUABLE LOUSE

The cochineal louse is once more in high favor in the Canary Islands. we are told by a writer in Atlantis. Berlin. At Las Palmas in these islands the prosperity of the village is based on this louse, which was imported from Mexico about a century ago. Its cultivation resulted in a scarlet dye that was exported in large quantities. When artificial aniline scarlet was invented, it was discovered to be much cheaper to produce than the cochineal, which was almost completely replaced by the new dyestuffs. Many plantations were abandoned, but a few planters held to theirs believing that one day a need for their dye would come back. When a harmless coloring for rouge and lipstick was sought some one remembered the old cochineal louse and now those who kept their stock and plantations in the Canaries are reaping a reward, as the cochineal is extensively used in the cosmetic industry and is restoring prosperity to Las Palmas.

Always a Supply

"Fools rush in," but there are plenty left.

Mercolized Wax

Keeps Skin Young

Absorb blemishes and discolorations using Mercolized Wax daily as directed. Invisible particles of aged skin are freed and all defects such as blackheads, tan, freckles and large pores disappear. Skin is then beautifully clear, velvety and so soft—face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out your hidden beauty. At all leading druggists.

Powdered Saxolite

Reduces wrinkles and other age-signs. Simply dissolve one ounce Saxolite in half-pint witch hazel and use daily as face lotion.

Works Both Ways

The quick to promise are usually quick to forget.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's constipated bowels until nature restores their regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use.

Try Looking Wise

Don't grin when you are photographed. It is more distinguished.

CREOMULSION

Your own druggist is authorized to cheerfully refund your money on the spot if you are not relieved by Creomulsion.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES

Rheumatic Pain Stopped by Lemon Juice Recipe

Try this. If it doesn't relieve you, make you feel better and younger and happier, your druggist will refund your money. Get a package of the REV PRESCRIPTION. Mix it with a quart of water, add the juice of 4 lemons and take a tablespoonful two times a day, in 48 hours, usually, the pain is gone, joints limber up, wonderful glorious relief is felt. Equally good for rheumatism, or neuritis pain. Costs only a few cents a day. For sale, recommended and guaranteed by all leading druggists. Any druggist will get the REV PRESCRIPTION if you ask him to do so.

MARLEY

Miss Iva Gillett

The Sunday Evening Club has had a new election of officers who will hold their position for 3 months. Florence Bush and Homer Sabin have turned over their duties as President and Vice-President to Irene Storm and James Tilsy. The first meeting during their term was held Sunday, October 7th, with Irene Storm in charge.

The Marley Dramatic Club met last Sunday afternoon at the church to have tryouts for the play, "Which will be given soon. The play, "Our Lean Year" is a Fred Eastman production and is a sequel to the play "Bread", which was given in the Marley Church last summer by the young people.

The "Honey Bee" Club met Saturday afternoon at the home of Mildred Rothberger. A program in charge of its chairman, Laura Specker, was given by the members. It consisted of reading by Clara Bush and May Helmke, a piano solo by Evelyn Cutler, and an amusement period in charge of Frances Gillett. Wilma and Vera Roberts, of Homer, who were guests of the club, sang a vocal duet.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Snodgrass were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sproat.

Mrs. Fred Wheeler and daughter of Aurora and Mrs. Julia Wheeler and daughter, Darlene, of Plainfield visited at the home of Mrs. John Day last week.

Miss Helen Frazer is now staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Snodgrass in Chicago, during the week.

UNDERSTANDING

Peace—a strong, understanding peace—has begun showing itself in the relations of the American Legion and some of the not-understanding pastors of small churches in Illinois growing out of the Legion's stand for preparedness for national DEFENSE.

Secluded, misinformed and with out personal contact with the Legion, some pastors had the odd impression that the service men who say war wanted to go out and get shot at, and through, again; and wanted the nation to go into the war business.

Within recent months they have learned two things: First, that letting this country get into war again is the last thing to which any Legionnaire would assent; indeed, every member would resist having others go through, what he went through, to the last ditch. Second, that the Legion's conception of citizenship also rested on the opening clause in its preamble—"For God and country."

The spiritual aspects of Americanism, flaming anew in Illinois and from here through the whole Legion body as a result of Illinois' leadership "back to the Preamble" last year, awakened many of these pastors to the fact that the peace and comfort and happiness for which Legionnaires fought still are dear to them and always will be.

As a result, support and comradeship to the Legion have come from many pastors and church people who now really understand the Legion's fundamental policy. In Campaign county, for instance, new understanding exists between service men and church people who find themselves in whole accord in policy, though they express it in differing words. The same is true in Harvey, where publication of a resolution by Harvey Post 155 separated the non-understanding from the well-informed and is resulting in the much desired common effort toward community good. Let's have more of this understanding. — From the Illinois Legionnaire.

TWO OBJECTIVES

The Legion is indulging in "no exultation at the about-face made by the Government on the pension question and is framing no further legislative requests to make to Congress," according to Watson B. Miller, national rehabilitation chairman. "We have two objectives before us all the time," he explained. "First to discover the honest fundamental requirements of men disabled in war service, and, second, to watch out for the rights of the man who has to pay the bill—the taxpayer."—Egyptian Legionnaire, Herrin, Illinois.

A member of the home missionary society approached the meanest man in town. "We are having a raffle for a poor old widow," she declared. "Will you buy a ticket for it?" "Nope. I couldn't keep her if I won her."

It was little George's first time at the opera. The conductor took his place in the orchestra pit and began to wave his baton, and the famous soprano started to sing. "What's the man shaking the stick at the woman for?" the boy asked his mother. "Keep quiet," whispered his mother. "He isn't shaking the stick at the woman." Little George was not convinced. "Well, then, what's she hollering for?"

NEW DEAL NOTES

The daily press last week carried the official figures showing that the market value of wheat, corn, hogs and cotton, the four basic farm commodities, were 101% higher than the average of September, 1932. Of course the Illinois farmer, and the business men who are dependent upon him, are supporting the new deal.

Martin A. Brennan, candidate for Congressman-at-Large, says in his speeches: "The Democratic administration has cleared up the banking situation; put agriculture back on its feet; saved hundreds of thousands of homes; put four million men to work, and abolished child labor. I ask the Republican leaders if they want to repeal the laws which caused all this to be done."

Under the Democratic administration of Governor Henry Horner the Illinois state government was operated in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, at less cost than any year since 1927, notwithstanding the great demand upon the State. That is one reason why your tax bills are lower.

At the present time 2,100,000 men are being employed in Public Works Administration projects and $40,000,000.00 a week is being spent for labor, materials, and transportation, thus giving communities the necessary public improvements and greatly stimulating business, trade and industry.

Michael L. Igoe, Democratic candidate for Congressman-at-Large, says that there is only one issue in this campaign. That issue, Mr. Igoe says, is whether the people in this country are satisfied with the Roosevelt administration or whether they are not.

It is To Laugh

"This brought a good laugh," wrote a reporter for the Decatur Herald in describing the merriment of a Republican campaign meeting Thursday evening, at the expense of the national agricultural program.

It was a jolly occasion. The chairman was a scream in his remarks about the hog-reduction plan. Milton E. Jones explained the joke in a more serious vein and condemned acreage limitation and crop destruction as unsound farm policies.

For a more complete understanding of the humor, readers are invited to turn back to the market records. There it will be found that on November 8, 1932, the day President Roosevelt was elected, and before any of these funny "unsound" agricultural policies were put into effect, the farmer was offered prices that compared in a funny way with present day market prices. Here is the proof:

THEN

200 pound hog	$ 6.10
Bushel No. 2 corn	.17
Bushel No. 2 wheat	.33
Bushel No. 2 soybeans	.38
Pound of butterfat	.19

NOW

200 pound hog	$14.80
Bushel No. 2 corn	.73
Bushel No. 2 wheat	.90
Bushel No. 2 soybeans	.75
Pound of butterfat	.26

The farmer's market under Mr. Hoover's sound Republican rule, when none of this funny business about restricting production to the consumption had been started, was no joke. While Mr. Jones, C. Wayland Brooks and a number of other Republican spellbinders are storming the country with their political thunder, farmers are beginning to get paid for what they sell. No one who compares the figures printed above can fail to see the uproarious humor in the present government program. For the first time since 1920 the farmer can join in the laugh.—Lawrenceville News.

John Stelle, Assistant State Auditor, who is the Democratic candidate for Treasurer, is known throughout the State for his industry, courtesy, honesty and ability, and because of his knowledge gained while he was Assistant State Treasurer will make a first class State Treasurer.

The following excerpts from the Peru News-Herald speak volumes. The News-Herald has been for fifty years an important paper in LaSalle County. The editorial said in part:

"After due thought and deliberation on the part of the management of the Daily News-Herald, this newspaper has decided to adopt the doctrine of Thomas Jefferson, one of the greatest characters of history. . . . Our editorial policy will be in furtherance of the doctrine of Democracy and in support of the Democratic Party, its principles and its traditions."

The Peru News-Herald is only one of many formerly Republican or independent papers which have turned definitely Democratic this year.

John A. Wieland, Democratic candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction, is making an excellent campaign for that office. He is a young man, vigorous, well educated, thoroughly qualified, and all his adult life has been spent in educational problems.

Illinois farmers can thank Governor Henry Horner for looking after their interests. He co-operated with the federal government in obtaining $30,000,000 in corn loans; established a state wide farm debt adjustment program through which more than 3,000 farm homes were saved from foreclosure; expedited distribution of $58,000,000 under corn-hog contracts for farmers, and added 40,000 soybean growers of the state by specifying soybean oil in paints purchased for the use of the State.

Three wrongs righted

three members of my family made happy

just by changing the lighting in our home

My husband suffered from constant headaches till your new "Better Sight" lamp banished them.

Changing the shade on Jimmy's reading lamp gave him renewed interest in his home work.

Dorothy squinted constantly, until the reading lamp in her room was changed.

Avoid eye strain with proper light. Send today for our free lighting test of your home.

In two out of three homes, say lighting experts, incorrect lighting threatens eyes. To protect eyes, 20 to 30 foot-candles of light should fall on the printed page. This should be properly diffused with no glare, no deep shadows, no contrasts to cause eyes to change focus frequently. Under such lighting eye tension is relieved. Your body relaxes. Your nerves relax, too.

Many homes lack correct lighting

Most women would be only too glad to give their families the benefit of safe lighting; to protect the eyesight of their children. But they have no way of measuring the kind of light their lamps give. And so night after night eyes struggle on with danger of permanent injury.

How to get it

In the last few years some wonderful discoveries have been made about proper lighting. Lighting engineers have found that just by changing the position of shades, by raising or lowering the height of bulbs, and by designing a special kind of "light reflecting" shade, these handicaps to eyesight are completely overcome. Your Public Service Store has a variety of these properly designed lamps for sale. They are beautiful as well as safe for eyes. Come down and see them and at the same time learn, from our better lighting display, simple and easy ways in which you can improve the lighting in your home. And get Free, a marvelous little device called "The Lighting Tape Measure," which enables you to tell quickly whether or not each lamp in your home is providing safe light. Act at once. Don't allow the eyes in your family to struggle unaided another night.

Which is YOUR lamp?

Lamp 1. Bulbs too low, sides of shade too sloping. Result—glare, deep shadows, eyestrain.

Lamp 2. Bulbs at right height, shade of correct design. Result—restful light, precious eyesight protected. FREE at your Public Service Store, "Lighting Tape Measure" to test your lamps. Get it today.

PATTERN 9929

If you know you must have a new frock but are undecided as to just what it should be, this pattern will make up your mind for you. It is the kind of a frock everybody always likes and looks well in—even if she does weigh an ounce or two more than she should. That long rever is a wonder-worker—it slims at the same time it gives smartness—and the V front and back just below the beltless waistline is another flattering detail. You will probably want to make this frock of a sheer cotton.

Pattern 9929 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3 3/4 yards 36 inch fabric, and 3/4 yard contrast.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

REDUCING

"My doctor says I'll have to reduce," said Mr. Dustin Stax. "You don't look overweight." "I refer to my business doctor. He says I must reduce dividends."

Royal Repose

"I'm sorry to keep grumbling, Mrs. Higgin," said the boarder, "but really I cannot sleep in that bed another night."

"I'd have you know," was the landlady's haughty rejoinder, "that that bed is fit for the prince of Wales." "Ah," replied the other, "that explains why it has only three feathers."—London Humorist.

The Pony Express Salutes the Telegraph

thrilling story of the Battle of Beecher's Island fought in eastern Colorado in September, 1868, that name is familiar. For Tom Ranahan was one of the party of 50 scouts, commanded by Col. George A. ("Sandy") Forsyth of the regular army, who wrote their names high in the history of the West by their desperate defense of the little island in the Arickaree river against the hosts of Cheyenne warriors led by Chief Roman Nose, who was killed there. Ranahan was still living in Idaho a few years ago—one of the three last survivors of the "Forsyth Scouts" and one of the few real surviving Pony Express riders.

One of the best short accounts of the Pony Express, dealing with its organization, operation and its historic importance, is the chapter devoted to it in the book "The Overland Mail, 1849-1869" by Dr. Le Roy Hafen, Colorado state historian, which was published by the Arthur H. Clark company of Cleveland in 1926.

In Dr. Hafen's points out that "The Pony Express" was not an end in itself, but a means to an end. There had been previous suggestions for the establishment of a fast overland express and an attempt was made in congress in 1855 to provide such a service but these first efforts did not succeed. With the establishment of the overland stage lines a rivalry had arisen between the Butterfield (the Southern) and 'Central' routes and with the assembling of the thirty-sixth congress in December, 1859, everything pointed in the direction of a general revision of the overland service. Partisans of the Central route were active but they met with considerable opposition. It was with the idea of demonstrating the practicability of the Central route for year-round travel and to secure an enlarged mail contract that the Pony Express scheme was conceived.

"During the winter of 1859-60, while William H. Russell was in Washington, he discussed the overland mail question with Senator Gwin of California. The senator contended that it was necessary to demonstrate the feasibility of the Central route before he would be able to get from congress the desired contract. He appealed to Russell to launch a swift overland express and agreed to obtain from congress a subsidy to reimburse the firm for the undertaking. The plan appealed to Russell and he agreed to put through the enterprise."

Put it through he did and on April 3, 1860, the historic Pony Express went into operation with riders starting simultaneously from the Eastern and Western termini—St. Joseph, Mo., and San Francisco, Calif. It continued until the through telegraph line was in operation. Then, says Hafen, "When the telegraph line was completed on October 24, 1861, the Pony Express came to a close. The pony was fast but he could not compete with the lightning."

Unfortunately for its founders it was far from being a financial success. It cost Russell and his partners $700,000 to operate it during its brief existence and their receipts were only $500,000 leaving them with a net loss of $200,000. But "from the standpoint of the nation the Pony Express was eminently successful. It demonstrated the practicability of the Central route and marked the path for the first trans-continental railroad. By shortening the distance between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts it helped unite the Pacific coast and the Rocky mountain region to the Union during the first ominous year of the Civil war. It showed the conquest of the West in one of its most spectacular phases and it is an act in the great western drama that will always be recalled and re-enacted as one of our precious heritages."

ROYAL RELATIONS

King Edward VII of England was married to Alexandra, daughter of King Christian IX of Denmark. Her sister Dagmar was the wife of Alexander III of Russia. Their son, the murdered Czar Nicholas II, was a second cousin to the present English King George V. The resemblance between the two cousins was remarkable.

Ornithological Study

Naturalists in England have started a two-year investigation into the secrets of the woodcock. They will count the nests and try to watch one of the deepest of the bird's secrets—how it carries its chicks from the wood where they are born to the open fields where they feed.

GET VAST SUMS FROM GULLIBLE

Gambling Rackets' "Loot" Is in the Billions.

Lotteries, "numbers" games and various other gambling rackets mult millions from the American public annually, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The sum is conservatively put at $4,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000. This is divided two ways. Over $1,000,000,000, it is estimated, is taken out of the country by legitimately operated foreign lotteries. The rest is taken by local gaming rackets.

A lottery scheme unearthed by federal officials in New England netted its operators more than $8,000,000 monthly.

Lotteries run from great national sweepstakes, fostered by governments and involving millions, down to local "pools" and "policy" games centered in villages and the corner drug and cigar stores of cities. These small pools—baseball, football and racing—are fed by the nickels and dimes of working men and low-salaried clerks. Even school children have been known to gamble their lunch money on these games. Recent investigation in an eastern city disclosed 90 per cent of its citizenship playing these games. Except for the great legitimate government operated and controlled lotteries the majority of those existing are frauds. All kinds of robbery schemes are worked. False tickets are sold. Recently government authorities confiscated 42,000,000 counterfeit Canadian lottery tickets. These were for sale in the United States at $1 apiece.

Dummy organizations help this crookedness. Dummy organizations with dummy officers. The dummy organization is to fool the law; the dummy officers to fool the lottery-minded public. The game is pure swindle. You buy a share in a newly organized company for a dollar, with the share you get the privilege of voting for the officer-set-up of the company. The president, of course, draws a fine salary; so do other officers of the company. You might even get elected a "salesman." Then the company falls or sells out. The president and other officials were mere dummies.

Doubtful Dad

"Now," said the college man to his dad at the football game, "you'll see more excitement for two dollars than you ever saw before."

"I don't know," replied the old gent, "that's what I paid for my marriage license."—Kansas City Star.

"NATURALLY SKINNY FOLKS"
2 WAYS IN 1 TO ADD WEIGHT QUICK!

5 lbs. in 1 Week or No Cost!

Hosts of thin, pale, rundown folks—and even "Naturally Skinny" men and women—are amazed at this new easy way to put on healthy needed pounds quickly. Gains of 15 to 20 lbs.—in one month—5 lbs. in a week—are reported regularly. Kelp-A-Malt, the new mineral concentrate from the sea, gets right down to the cause of thin, underweight conditions and adds weight, through a "2 ways in one" natural process.

First, its rich supply of easily assimilable minerals nourish the digestive glands which produce the juices that alone enable you to digest the fats and starches . . . the weight-making elements in your daily diet. Second, Kelp-A-Malt's natural FOOD IODINE regulates and nourishes the internal glands which control assimilation—the process of converting digested food into firm flesh, new strength and energy. Three Kelp-A-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper than a pound of spinach or 7½ pounds of fresh tomatoes; more calcium than 6 eggs; more phosphorus than 1½ lbs. carrots; more FOOD IODINE than 1600 lbs. of beef.

Try Kelp-A-Malt for a single week and notice the difference—how much better you feel. If you don't gain at least 5 lbs. of good, firm flesh in 1 week the trial is free. Kelp-A-Malt costs but little at all good drug stores. If your dealer has not yet received his supply, send $1 for special introductory size bottle of 65 tablets to the address below.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE other day press dispatches carried the news that "one of the last of the old-time Pony Express riders" had died in the West at the age of eighty-five. The only trouble with that news item was this: if his age at the time of his death was given correctly, then he must have been braving the perils, which constantly threatened members of that famous corps of daredevil riders, at the tender age of eleven years! Knowing what we do of the history of the Pony Express, what was required of its riders and the conditions under which they operated, it doesn't seem likely that an eleven-year-old boy was one of them.

And yet this particular news item is not unique. For the last two decades such items have been appearing regularly in our newspapers and almost invariably a check-up on the dates in them would reveal the fact that this supposed "Pony Express rider" had been engaged in his dangerous task while still a mere child. Indeed, one of them who was characterized as a "Pony Express rider" would have been only six years old at the time!

The explanation of this inconsistency lies in the fact that there is much confusion as to exactly what is meant by the term "Pony Express rider." Strictly speaking, that title can be applied only to men who were engaged by the Central Overland California and Pikes Peak Express company for its Pony Express service, founded by William H. Russell of the famous firm of Russell, Majors and Waddell in 1860, started in April of that year and discontinued in October, 1861. That was the original Pony Express whose brief career of 18 months forms one of the most romantic chapters in the history of the old frontier.

In later years throughout the West the mails were carried over long stretches of territory by horsemen until their work was taken over by stage coach lines which, in turn, were succeeded by the railroads. During these years it became somewhat the fashion to refer to these horsemen as "Pony Express riders," a characterization which persisted after the passing of the frontier without any special inquiry into the appropriateness of the title.

So in these modern days, when an old-timer dies and it becomes known that he had once carried the mails on horseback out West, he is immediately set down as a "Pony Express rider," which accounts for some of the news items spoken of at the beginning of this article. Mounted mail carriers they may have been but they were not real Pony Express riders—at least not all of them.

Who, then, were the real Pony Express riders? It is doubtful if a complete roster of their names can ever be compiled. When operation of the Pony Express service began, there were 80 of them but this number varied during the next 18 months and it is probable that at least 100 different men at one time or another were riders in the service.

In connection with the celebration held in 1923, the Union Pacific Magazine issued a special Pony Express number in which Miss Mary Pack, writing on "The Romance of the Pony Express," listed the following as known riders for the original organization:

*Those marked with an * are living at the present time.

During the same year Howard R. Driggs, president of the Oregon Trail Memorial association and a well-known historian of pioneer days in the West, said in an article in the New York Tribune magazine:

"They can be counted on the fingers of one hand, the few that remain of the hundred or more daring boys who helped put America's first mail across from old Saint Joe to Sacramento during those stirring days of the early '60s. Right now . . . only a bare handful of the original riders are left to take part. And they can participate only as onlookers; for every one of them is over eighty years of age."

"These survivors, according to last reports, are John Sebeck of Alameda, Calif.; Charles Cliff of St. Joseph, Mo.; and Elijah Maxwell of Loa, Utah. Two or three others have been named with some uncertainty. Several station keepers and substitute riders have also been reported alive. More may be discovered through the celebration in progress; but the three Pony Expressmen just named seem to be the only regular riders that linger to give first-hand experience of that thrilling epoch in America's story."

It will be noticed that Mr. Driggs' list of survivors checks with Miss Pack's list only in regard to Charles Cliff and John Sebeck. He does not mention four in her list—Charles Becker, William Pridham, Tom Ranahan and W. H. Streeter—and she does not mention one of his three—Elijah Maxwell. And neither of them mentions another survivor, Henry Avis, who was a resident of Kansas City until his death in 1927.

In Root and Connelley's "Overland Stage to California" appears "a partial list, so far as is known, of the men who rode the Pony Express and contributed to the lasting fame of the enterprise." It contains 47 names, 24 fewer than Miss Pack's list, but it names three which she does not have. They are William Boulton, William Carrigan and H. J. Faust.

One of Miss Pack's list just missed being marked with an * as a survivor. He was Joseph Donovan (Joe Donovan) who died in Denver, July 26, 1923, just a month before the Pony Express celebration began. Besides being a Pony Express rider, Donovan had a stirring career as a government scout and Indian fighter, according to the accounts of his death in the Denver newspapers. He was said to have held the distinction of being the only Denver citizen, at the time of his death, who had visited the site of that city prior to 1859.

Even more famous as a scout was another Pony Express rider who now lies buried on Lookout mountain near Denver. His name appears on the Pony Express roll as William F. Cody but the whole world was to know him in the future as "Buffalo Bill." Most accounts of the Pony Express give prominent mention to Cody as one of the youngest of its riders (he was only fourteen at the time) and the rider who made "one of the longest" and "probably the longest continuous performance without a formal rest period in the history of this or any other courier service"—322 miles in 21 hours.

Unfortunately for Cody's fame as a Pony Express rider, just as is the case in some of the other phases of his career, the record is not clear enough to be accepted unquestioningly. One of his most trustworthy biographers, Richard J. Walsh in his book, "The Making of Buffalo Bill," says: "His Pony Express record is accepted by historians but all of the testimony is hearsay and the accounts of that period are highly confused. . . . Alexander Majors vouched for Cody's service on the Overland trails but Majors, when he told the story, was an old man in sore straits and grateful to Buffalo Bill for financial assistance and Majors' book was written for him by none other than Prentiss Ingraham, the dime novelist."

Elsewhere in his book, Walsh says: "At first, he (the fourteen-year-old Cody) was given an easy route, forty-five miles, which he had to make in three hours with three changes of mounts. . . . This 'easy route' was probably the regular road between Leavenworth and St. Joseph, over which Cody rode as 'the office boy on horseback' (a term by which Majors once characterized him), carrying mail to be placed in the Pony Express bags at St. Joseph. Connelley (William E. Connelley, late secretary of the Kansas Historical society and one of the most careful investigators and reliable historians of that part of the West) believes that this is the only Pony Express riding ever done by Cody."

Perhaps the name of Tom Ranahan on the Pony Express rolls means little to the average person but to anyone who has ever read the

FRANKFORT

Miss Florence Scheer was taken seriously ill in Chicago last Monday and was brought home Thursday. She is now improving nicely. Her sister, Marie, a trained nurse has been caring for her.

Miss Marie Geuther returned home from Kansas City accompanied by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Weber of Manhattan. The trip was made by automobile.

Maurice Meyers of Hammond, Indiana spent Thursday night here with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Knight.

Mrs. Edward Harms and Mrs. Henry Harms of Chicago Heights, spent Friday with Mrs. Frank Cheney.

The Donkey Kitten ball game Monday night at the Pester field at Manhattan ended in a tie. Frankfort and Manhattan teams played as there was to be only a five inning game. It was a tie Manhattan one, Frankfort one. Everyone present got lots of thrills and excitement.

Marjorie Peklo, Chris Argus, Maurice Myers, Bob Bicknell, all of Hammond, Indiana, Lloyd and Norbert Hart of Calumet City, Margaret Cole of Chicago Heights and Ella Marie Pfeiffer were guests in the home of Miss Marge Knight Thursday evening.

The Frankfort Girls Kitten Ball team were defeated Monday night by the All Stars Girls Team of Manhattan at Pester's field. The score was Manhattan 12, Frankfort 7.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Knight entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. Frye and sons of Plainfield Sunday.

Mrs. W. V. Hedges was hostess to the vinocle club in her home Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Fred Heusner was a guest of the club. The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Charles Pfaff, Jr., Nov. 2nd.

Miss Florence Scheer who was ill is able to be out again.

Mrs. Herbert Gullickson of Joliet entertained the Amite Sewing Club Tuesday night.

The Frankfort Home Improvement Club will meet next Thursday afternoon, October 18th, in the home of Mrs. J. M. Clark.

The program chairmen for the afternoon are Mrs. Wm. Lankenau and Mrs. Chas. Pfaff Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gardner and daughter Sue of Brooklyn, New York, arrived Saturday in Frankfort to visit with Mrs. Gardner's parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kohlman. They are visiting this week with Mr. Gardner's parents in Belleville, Illinois, and will return Monday to Frankfort for another weeks visit.

Miss Eloise Kohlman who is teaching in the High School at Riverside, Illinois, spent the week end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kohlman.

Ironie Spinach

THERE'S plenty of iron in spinach, and it is good for children, but the irony of it is that children generally don't like foods that are "good for them." So after all the labor of washing the spinach — and it is real labor — and of cooking it — which isn't the best of indoor sports during these hot days — comes the agony of hearing your child say: "I won't eat my spinach!"

There are several ways to get around these difficulties. The first is to buy your spinach in cans. This is a much better product than you can buy in any city market, and it eliminates the labor of washing it and shortens to a minimum the time of heating it. The second is not to tell your child that it is good for him, but to prepare it in such ways that he will be amused and interested and willing to eat it. Here are a couple.

Intiguing Spinach Dishes
Mountain Peaks— Make piles of hot fluffy mashed potatoes as high and jagged on top as possible, to represent snow on peaks. Around the bottom pile hot buttered canned spinach to look like the trees below the snow line. Serve with crisp bacon curls, and watch the mountains disappear!
Spinach and Beet Mold— Season the drained contents of a can of spinach well with butter, salt and pepper, and pack while hot into a buttered ring mold. Keep hot while preparing beets. Heat canned beets, drain, chop and season well with butter, salt and pepper. Turn spinach mold out onto a hot round platter, and fill center with beets. Then sprinkle chopped, hard-cooked eggs over the spinach ring to give it a festive appearance, and see what your children do to that!

TINLEY PARK

Mr. Strassenburg is slowly recovering from his siege of scarlet fever. Mr. and Mrs. August Mesenbrink and son Walter motored to Battle Creek, Michigan last Sunday to Mrs. Nellie Ann and found her well.

"Welcome home". Mr. and Mrs. J. Keleher left ten days ago to visit Mrs. Keleher's sister in Texas. They returned Sunday evening.

They say it is alright to go traveling but there is no place like "Home, Sweet Home" and they were glad to be home again.

The Tinley Park Legion Post will hold a social meeting at the Legion Community Hall next Tuesday eve.

The 500 played at the home of Grandma Hick Monday. It was also the occasion of Grandma Hick's birth day. We wish him many more.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Neff visited in Chicago over the week end.

Mrs. Stella Hatfield is visiting in Moline for a few weeks.

Wonder how Mr. Hans Vick, Walter Mancke, and Dini enjoyed themselves at the Century of Progress on Monday. Hope they all had a good time.

Mr. William Koehler is home from hunting for a few days. His neighbors think he got home sick and when he gets over this he expects to go back.

Mrs. Dunn entertained the "Smiling Thru" bunco club Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Nebergall had his sister from Iowa as a World's Fair guest for several days.

Foresaw the Telephone
The possibility of telephone or wireless telegraph was evidently in the mind of Galileo, for in 1632 he referred to "the secret art" by which through the sympathy of magnetic needles men might converse at long distance.
